

Jacqueline Burgess–Bishop’s professional career spans over 35 years and incorporates leadership, consultant advisory and entrepreneurial roles in multiple segments of the health care industry. Jacqueline is the CEO of the National Kidney Foundation of Illinois and leads the mission to change the trajectory of kidney disease and promote kidney health through education, prevention, services and empowerment. Her professional experience includes leadership positions within the Ambulatory Division of Cook County Health, the Illinois/Lakeshore Division of the American Cancer Society and Habilitative Systems, Inc.(HSI), She is an INROADS alumnus, where her corporate placement and early careerist experience occurred at Rush University Medical Center.

Jacqueline is board certified as a Fellow in the American College of Healthcare Executives (FACHE). Jacqueline serves on the boards of national and local professional, civic and community based organizations. Ms. Bishop is a Fellow since “96” of Leadership Greater Chicago (LGC) and member of the Leadership Fellows (LFA) Advisory Board. Jacqueline has been an active NAHSE member for over 30 years at the National and Chapter Levels and has been honored to receive awards from NAHSE. Jacqueline has her MBA degree from the Kellogg Graduate School of Management at Northwestern University. She is married to Marc Bishop Sr. and has two sons, Marc II and Nicholas.